Knackmuhls of Mokena got second in the shot put, and Hartman got third in the 440 yard run.

Child Swallows Open Safety Pin

While Mrs. E. E. McArthur residing in the Elmore subdivision near Tinley Park, was changing the clothes of her year and a half old child Tuesday morning, the child grabbed up an open safety pin and swallowed it. The pin lodged in the child's throat. A physician was called and the infant was rushed to the St. Francis hospital at Blue Island where an x-ray was taken but as nothing could be done for the child at the hospital it was taken to a specialist in Chicago who successfully removed the pin. It is reported the operation cost $100.

Peter Zahner Dies In Iowa

Peter Zahner, aged 49 years, a former resident of Tinley Park, died at the Iowa City hospital at nine o'clock on May 26th. He leaves in sorrow besides his wife, five children, three daughters, Mrs. I. W. Bettenhausen, of Tinley Park, Litha and Aldamae and two sons, Paul and Russell. His daughter, Gladys died just two months before of pneumonia. It is thought that the grief hastened his death which was due to heart trouble followed by a ruptured blood vessel in the head which lead to several days of mental suffering in which he would know persons at different times for only a few seconds. He had been ill since last Fall and has been failing fast since the death of his daughter.

Steal Tractor Oil Cups and Tools

Last week Raymond Warning received a carload of tractors and all the oil cups were stolen from the machines and all the tool boxes had been broken open and the tools taken from them.

Elimination Of Worth Routes Is Defeated

The proposed elimination of the rural routes from Worth by dividing it between Palos Park and Oak Lawn has been definitely decided against by the office of the Postmaster General in Washington. When this change was proposed, Congressman Elliott W. Sprouhl, who always keeps close to the needs and wishes of his constituents, caused an investigation to be made of the wishes of the various patrons of all three routes. He found a very strong sentiment at Palos Park against any change to service from Oak Lawn, the Golf Clubs and the Spring Water dispensers being particularly strenuous in their objections, the all patrons concerned voiced objections as well. At Worth petitions were circulated objecting to having their mail address changed to Palos Park. On receipt of this information, Congressman Sprouhl took the matter up the postoffice department with the results as stated above.

Tinley Legion News

Poppy Day on Tuesday May 27 netted a total of $66.66 for the Service Fund of the local post. The people of Tinley Park and Orland Park were very generous with their contributions to this good work. The ladies who sold the poppies are: Mesdames Geo. Rowden, Ray Brennan, E. Anderson, W. Medrow, E. B. Campbell, E. L. Nylander, A. Ceithamel, W. Mager, C. A. Wallin, and Wm. Wannemacher. The officers of the Post desire to thank these good ladies for their work and the public for their generosity. Truly "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

It may be of some interest to the public to know the details of poppy sales. Each Post of the Legion purchases the poppies at 5 cents apiece. Of this amount, 1/2 cent goes to the veterans in the hospitals who make the poppies. The other 4 1-2 cents goes to the State Service Department of the American Legion. All money received over the cost of the poppies goes into the Service Fund of the local Post. This Service Fund is expended under the directions of the Post Service officer. Reports of poppy money received are transmitted to State Headquarters of the Legion and in the case of large cities to the city council which authorizes all tag days. The Service Officer of each Post renders detailed accounts of all receipts and expenditures of service money to his Post and to district, county, state and national headquarters of the Legion.

Appomatox 1865

The Blue and the Gray came together one day,
And this is how it came true;
The boys in blue were gray with dust,
And the boys in gray were blue.
Decoration Day 1930.
The Blue and the Gray are together again.
But not in the selfsame way;
The boys in gray are now "true blue",
And the boys in blue are "gray."

Noted Minister To Address Orland Students

Rev. Chas. A. Gage, an old friend of Judge Sherman S. Knox, will be the speaker for the Orland Park school graduation exercises to be held Tuesday, June 3rd.

Dr. Gage is perhaps one of the best known clergymen in Illinois and served for years as pastor of the Hyde Park Methodist church, the largest congregation of this denomination in Chicago. He has for years, made a study of the child and youth problem and in recognition of his ability along these lines, was appointed as an assistant to States' Attorney Swanson with the title of "Director of the Youth's Service Bureau". It is the purpose of this Bureau to watch over first offenders, see that they get a "break" and to find jobs or remedy home or association conditions that may have been instrumental in bringing them into trouble with the law and to generally try to turn them into the path of good citizenship.

Dr. Gage is a powerful and convincing orator and a large crowd is desired to greet him here and to hear his message as it is a rare treat to secure a man of his caliber and eminence for such a small affair as a country school graduation exercise.

Write Street Addresses Says Mokena P. M.

Daisy F. Lynk, Mokena postmaster, asks that the patrons of the Mokena postoffice follow out the following request:

In addressing mail to Chicago and other offices having delivery service, kindly use a complete street and number address. The delivery of mail without street address is seriously delayed and many times is either returned to the sender or else goes to the dead letter office. More than 4000 such letters are received at the Chicago office each day. Please co-operate and help improve the service.

No Memorial Day Program In Mokena

Owing to the Mokena Memorial Day committee falling down on the job there is no Memorial program for Mokena this year. It seems too bad that Mokena should be so in different in this respect when all the surrounding communities where far less soldiers lie buried, put on appropriate services every year. Mokena has one distinction few communities have, and that is the last resting place of a veteran of the Revolutionary War. There are about 15 or more Civil war veterans buried in the three cemeteries in and about Mokena.

Surely there must be some patriotic people in Mokena who have enough respect for their country to honor its soldier dead and we can see no reason why Mokena has to take a back seat when it comes to putting on a Memorial program.

It is to be hoped that Mokena will wake up and do better next year.

At the close of the Memorial exercises last year, Richard Hensel was appointed chairman for this year, but Mr. Hensel denies having any knowledge of the appointment.

A few of the patriotic citizens of the community felt it was too much of a disgrace to let the day go by without decorating the soldiers last resting places so they bought the flowers out of the Memorial fund and decorated the graves themselves.

Mokena P. T. A. Holds Banquet

The Fifth Annual Banquet of the Mokena P. T. A. was held at the St. John Evangelical church Tuesday evening. About fifty members were present and a splendid program was given. The church was beautifully decorated in pink and green.

Miss Mildred Woodrick, Mrs. Yahnke, Mrs. Carl Hirsch, Miss Isabel Boyd of Joliet and Rev. Sandall deserve a vote of thanks for providing an exceptional musical program. The members of the School Board were requested to say a few words and as usual, these speeches were brief but pointed. Our in-coming president, Mrs. Hirsch was called on and answered in a few well chosen words.

Raymond Heiman gave a reading "All run down" which furnished a laugh a minute. It was great.

Rev. G. G. Bratzel lead in prayer and later responded to a toast "Education that Broadens" and his genial smile went well with his interesting talk.

Rev. Sandall responded to "The Attitude of Parents" which went over big as well as his leading the members in singing between courses.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Alvin Hornback of Naperville. The P. T. A., feel they were fortunate in procuring a speaker of her ability and her address "Do Parents need Educating?" was an education in itself. Mrs. Hornback has been in the state work of the Illinois Congress of Parents and of Teachers for a number of years and she brought a wonderful message on P. T. A. work. She feels that Mokena has a fine future in this line.

Mrs. Hornback was entertained by Mrs. Wm. Lowe during her stay here. After the banquet at the request of a number of members, Mrs. Hornback agreed to stay over until Wednesday afternoon to meet and help those particularly interested in this work. These members called on her Wednesday morning at Mrs. Lowe's home and the work for the coming year was discussed. A number of important topics were taken up at Mrs. Hornback's suggestion.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be held June 10th at 7:30. Installation of officers and unfinished business make this an important meeting. This is probably the last meeting until September.

To Condemn Property For Right Of Way

The matter of advertising for bids for the construction of bridges and for the paving of Wolf Road will be held up until all the right of way has been secured. So far 85 per cent of the needed right of way has been dedicated. Four property owners on Wolf road, Chester Gorney, H. S. Schiek, Fred Brown and Anton Nelson still refuse to accept the county right of way committee's offers for the land they will require from these property owners and are holding up the improvement of Wolf Road. The county committee has indicated that they will start condemnation suits against these four property owners very shortly.

The county committee just finished a condemnation suit against a land owner in another part of the county. This party had been offered $3500 for a certain strip of land. He refused this offer. After the condemnation suit he settled for $1600.

Salvation Army Drive Goes Over Big In Mokena

The Salvation Army put over its annual drive in Mokena, Wednesday, May 28. Over $50 was contributed. Ona E. McGovey, chairman, accompanied by Capt. Strissel, officer in charge of the Joliet District, and Will County, solicited all business places.

Capt. Strissel wishes to thank the village of Mokena for its generous support.

This is what encourages the Salvation Army to carry on the good work.

The News-Bulletin is also to be thanked for its kindness in giving publicity to this drive.

Old Glory in Song and Story

1777 June 14 Saturday June 14 1777
 - Captain D. that the flag of this state shall be 13 stripes alternate red and white, that the Union be 13 stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation.

the Stars and Stripes in the United States. From the earliest days of the Republic it has been a favorite theme of the poets. One of the most famous which it has inspired is that national classic, written by Joseph Rodman Drake early in the Nineteenth century. Nearly every American schoolboy at some time or another has recited these stirring lines:

THE AMERICAN FLAG

When Freedom from her mountain height
 Unfurled her standard in the air,
 She tore the azure robe of night,
 And set the stars of glory there,
 She mingled with its gorgeous dyes
 The milky baldrick of the skies,
 And striped its pure celestial white
 With streakings of the morning light;
 Then from his mansion in the sun
 She called her eagle bearer down,
 And gave into his mighty hand
 The symbol of her chosen land.

Majestic monarch of the cloud,
 Who rear'st aloft thy regal form,
 To hear the tempest trumplings loud
 And see the lightning lances driven,
 When strive the warriors of the storm,
 And rolls the thunder-drum of heaven,
 Child of the sun! to thee 'tis given
 To guard the banner of the free,
 To hover in the sulphur smoke,
 To ward away the battle stroke,
 And bid its blendings shine afar,
 Like rainbows in the cloud of war,
 The harbingers of victory!

One of the prose classics, inspired by the national emblem, is "The Makers of the Flag," by Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior in President Wilson's cabinet. Speaking before the employees of his department in Washington on Flag day in 1914, Mr. Lane delivered this eulogy:

THE MAKERS OF THE FLAG

This morning, as I passed into the land office, the flag drooped me a most cordial salutation, and from its rippling folds I heard it say: "Good morning, Mr. Flag Maker."

"I beg your pardon, Old Glory," I said, "aren't you mistaken? I am not the President of the United States, nor a member of congress, nor even a general in the army. I am only a government clerk."

"I greet you again, Mr. Flag Maker," replied the flag voice. "I know you well. You are the man who worked in the sweater of yesterday straightening out the tangle of that farmer's homestead in Idaho, or perhaps you found the mistake in that Indian contract in Oklahoma, or helped to clear the patent for that hopeful inventor in New York, or pushed the opening of that new ditch in Colorado, or made that mine in Illinois more safe, or brought relief to the old soldier in Wyoming. No matter; whichever one of these beneficent individuals you may happen to be, I give you greeting, Mr. Flag Maker."

I was about to pass on when the flag stopped me with these words:

"Yesterday the President spoke a word that made happier the future of 10,000,000 peons in Mexico; but that act looms no larger on the flag than the struggle which the boy in Georgia is making to win the Corn Club prize this summer."

"Yesterday, the congress spoke a word which will open the door of Alaska; but a mother in Michigan worked from sunrise until far into the night to give her boy an education. She, too, is making the flag."

"Yesterday we made a new law to prevent financial panics, and yesterday, maybe, a school teacher in Ohio taught his first letters to a boy who will some day write a song that will give cheer to millions of our race. We are all making the flag."

"But," I said, "these people were only working!"

Then came a great shout from the flag:

"The work that we do is the making of the flag."

"I am not the flag; not at all. I am but its shadow."

"I am whatever you make me, nothing more."

"I am your belief in yourself, your dream of what a people may become."

"I live a changing life, a life of moods and passions, of heartbreaks and tired muscles."

"Sometimes I am strong with pride, when men do an honest work, fitting the rails together truly."

"Sometimes I droop, for then purpose has gone from me, and cynically I play the coward."

"Sometimes I am loud, garish and full of that ego that blasts judgment."

"But always I am all that you hope to be, and have the courage to try for."

"I am song, a fear, struggle and panic, and ennobling hope."

"I am the day's work of the weakest man, and the largest dream of the most daring."

"I am the Constitution and the courts, statutes and the statute makers, soldier and dreadnaught, drayman and street-sweep, cook, counselor and clerk."

"I am the battle of yesterday, and the mistake of tomorrow."

"I am the mystery of the men who do without knowing why."

"I am the clutch of an idea, and the reasoned purpose of resolution."

"I am no more than what you believe me to be and I am all that you believe I can be."

"I am what you make me, nothing more."

"I swing before your eyes as a bright gleam of color, a symbol of yourself, the pictured suggestion of that big thing which makes this nation. My stars and my stripes are your dream and your labors. They are bright with cheer, brilliant with courage, firm with faith because you have made them so out of your hearts. For you are the makers of the flag and it is well that you glory in the making."

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

HE scene is Independence hall in Philadelphia. The date is June 14, 1777. The Second Continental congress is in session and at the command of John Hancock, Secretary Charles Thomson reads the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

The resolution is unanimously adopted by the congress. Thus the Stars and Stripes became our national flag. Thus the Red, White and Blue became our national colors.

The scene is Fort Mchenry in Maryland. The time is during the third year of the War of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain and, more particularly, the date is the night of September 12, 1814. A British fleet, sailing up the Chesapeake bay to capture Baltimore as a part of the British plan to "cut the nation in two," finds Fort Mchenry a stubborn obstacle to that plan. On one of the British ships a young Maryland lawyer, who has gone on board seeking the release of a friend who had been taken prisoner by the invaders, is detained by them. Francis Scott Key is his name. All night long the guns of the men-of-war roar and all night long the fort answers with such artillery as can reach the enemy.

As the dawn of September 13 breaks, Key peers anxiously through the mist and smoke to see if the fort is still holding out against the bombardment. A welcome sight meets his eyes. High up on the flagpole of the fort the Stars and Stripes floats in the morning air. Key's joy can be expressed in only one way. He sits down and upon the back of a letter, which he happens to have in his pocket, he writes some notes for a poem which flashes into his mind in the ecstasy of that moment. A little later he writes out the poem in full and this is it:

STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

O say can you see by the dawn's early light
 What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
 Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
 O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming?
 And the rocket's red glare, the bomb bursting in air,
 Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there,
 O say does that star-spangled banner yet wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen through the mists of the deep,
 Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
 What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
 As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
 Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
 In full glory reflected now shines in the stream,
 'Tis the star-spangled banner—O long may it wave,
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

O, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
 Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation,
 Blest with vict'ry and peace may the heav'n rescued land
 Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation!
 Then conquer we must when our cause it is just,
 And this be our motto—"In God is our trust."
 And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave,
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On September 21 his poem is published in the Baltimore American and a few days later it is

1. The house flag which is flown from the arm of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor on Flag day each year. On the balcony below stands Mrs. Laura B. Priska, "the Mother of Flag Day."
2. The original "Flag Resolution" of June 14, 1777, in the handwriting of Charles Thomson, secretary of the Second Continental congress.
3. Capt. William Driver, the Salem (Mass.) sea captain, who gave the name of "Old Glory" to the American flag.
4. Bas-relief on the base of the Francis Scott Key Memorial monument at Fort Mchenry, Md., which perpetuates the fame of the man who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner," the national anthem.
- 5 "The Stars and Stripes Forever!"—A thrilling incident of the Revolution. The British evacuating after the Yorktown surrender, nailed the British flag to the flagstaff at the Battery and then greased the pole. A barefoot sailor boy volunteered to climb up, take down the enemy flag and nail the American flag to the pole. From the reproduction of the famous painting by Henry Mosler in "The Winning of Freedom," volume of "The Pageant of America," Yale University Press.

struck off in handbill form and distributed on the streets of Baltimore where there is great rejoicing at the deliverance from the threat of invasion. The poem immediately catches the fancy of the public and Ferdinand Durang sets it to music, using an adaptation of an old tune, "Anacreon in Heaven." A popular actress sings it in the Holliday Street theater and it is greeted with thunderous applause.

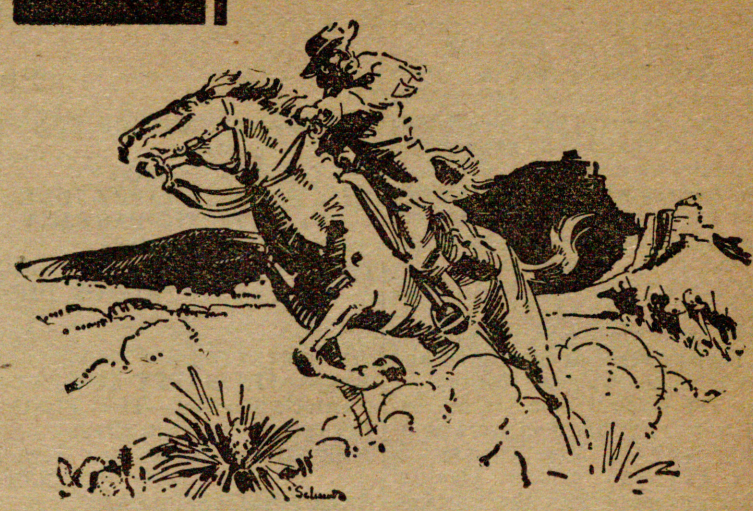

Thus our national flag became widely known as the Star-Spangled Banner. Thus America acquired a national anthem by popular choice and popular custom, although no definite action toward official adoption of Key's song as our national anthem was taken until this year.

The scene is Salem, Mass. The date is August 10, 1831. Down at the Salem wharves a crowd of citizens gathers to see the sailing of the brig, Charles Daggett, which is about to start on a 'round-the-world voyage. Capt. William Driver, master of the Charles Daggett, is one of the best known skippers who have carried the name of Salem to every part of the globe. He is noted for his sturdy Americanism and his deep love for his country's flag. So his neighbors have brought him a gift which they know will please him as nothing else can. It is a fine American flag.

Captain Driver is on deck when a sailor, carrying the red, white and blue bundle, folded in triangular form, advances and starts out upon his carefully memorized speech. "In ancient times when an ocean voyage was looked upon with superstitious dread," he says, "it was the custom on the eve of departure to roll the banner in the form of a triangle. When ready the priest stepped forward and taking the banner in hand sprinkled it with consecrated water and dedicated it to 'God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost,' turning the point of the triangle upward at the name of each, thus calling on that unity of Creator, Redeemer, and Sanctifier to bless the national emblem and prosper the voyagers and their friends. The flag thus consecrated was then hoisted to the masthead."

As he finishes, he hands his gift to Captain Driver who adjusts it to the halyards and hoists it in position at the masthead. Quiet falls upon the crowd as the new flag unfurls in all its beauty. To Captain Driver, who has just heard the rite of the ancients, comes the inspiration to perform a rite of his own. Looking aloft he cries out, "Till call her Old Glory, boys, Old Glory!" Thus was the name Old Glory first applied to our national banner.

In few other countries has the national flag been such an inspiration to writers as has been

ORLAND PARK

The concert and chicken supper put on at the Orland Park M. E. church last Tuesday was a great event and a wonderful success in every way. The chicken supper was held first in the church parlors and 211 guests were served.

The concert was held in the auditorium which was packed to seating and standing capacity and many people had to be turned away.

The concert was sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of this church.

They presented Mrs. Prudence Neff Thomas resident of Orland and artists from the Chicago Institute of Music. The musical numbers as rendered were very fine and were wonderfully received. Mrs. Thomas is one of America's foremost pianists. She has appeared with the Chicago, Minneapolis and Russian Symphony Orchestras and also as soloist with such as Hugo Heerman and Florence Hinkle.

Sascha Corado, baritone accompanied by Elizabeth Moritz, pianist, also carried off a good sized lion's share of the honors and appreciation of the evening. He is a wonderful singer. He is on the staff of the Chicago Institute of Music. Both are European trained artists. They reside at Tinley Park.

The Orland band meets and practices every Thursday night. They are doing excellent.

Gottlieb Braasch was hit by an auto truck one day last week and suffered seven broken ribs. He was taken to the St. Joseph hospital in Joliet and is getting along as well as can be expected.

The village board met Monday. The board is urging all water users to pay up their water bills within thirty days of receipt of water bill or their water supply will be shut off.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL

The Orland Park School is planning a series of activities which began Thursday evening, May 29th with the high school banquet and theatre party. This is one of the events the class has been looking forward to for sometime.

The Baccalaureate address will be given by Rev. Wm. Gorey assisted by Rev. Paul T. Sanders and the Rev. W. H. Medler on Sunday evening, June first.

On Tuesday evening, June 3rd will be the Eighth Grade Graduation. Rev. Chas. A. Gage, for years, pastor of the Hyde Park M. E. church and now director of the Youth Service Bureau of the State's Attorneys office, will be the speaker. The High School commencement will follow on Thursday evening, June 5th. On this occasion we shall have the pleasure of listening to Rev. Robert L. Rasche of the University of Chicago and pastor of the Maywood Congregational church.

The public is most cordially invited to these events which will be held in the school auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

The annual school festival will be held June 6th at the Swallow Cliff Forest Preserve, Palos Park.

Grandma's Back No Longer Tells of Coming Rain

Another sure sign of rain—the ache in grandma's back—promises to become less dependable. Tomorrow's grandmothers, according to signs of the times, will have no backaches due for the most part to labor saving devices in common use today.

Grandma's daily housework used to include scrubbing the floor on hands and knees, stooping over the kitchen range to get at the oven underneath, bending low to get food out of the ice box, wielding the dust cloth about the lower portions of the furniture and other strenuous tasks, according to Clarence E. Beagley, Orland Park Frigidaire dealer.

"Long-handled dust mops, scrub brushes with handles, kitchen ranges with the oven waist-high, and similar improvements in the design of house-keeping equipment have benefited the woman of today. One of Frigidaire's outstanding features is that its shelves are waist-high to avoid tiresome stooping," he said.

"Because the compressor unit is located in the bottom of the cabinet shelves are placed where they are readily accessible. This arrangement has a doubled advantage. Contents of the food shelves are easily reached and at the same time the compressor unit is located where the air is coolest, thus assuring maximum efficiency in its operation.

"The flat top, so provided, makes an ideal serving shelf. Finished in mar-proof porcelain, it can be used for all such purposes without fear of damage."

Shaft Would Have Value

It is strange that an expedition into the earth's interior has never been seriously attempted. If we could sink a shaft only twelve miles into the ground we might strike all the coal and oil that would be needed in millions of years. In all likelihood we should find radium, gold, silver, diamonds, and other gems of untold wealth, as well as wonderful new metals and fresh sources of energy.—Exchange.

Kasten - Klenk To Speak At Dedication

Ceremony 1:30 Today

Mayor Krank Kasten of Blue Island and Attorney Paul Klenk, also of that city, will speak at the dedication of the playground at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Both are excellent speakers, men of wide experience and the Legion advises every citizen to turn out to hear them. Mayor Kasten has been connected with playground projects for some time. A drum and bugle corps is another feature of the program. Immediately following the dedication the junior baseball team of Harvey will play the Midlothian team.

The Legion has been active the past week in painting and cleaning up the playground. A regulation baseball diamond has been constructed for the use of the three teams in the village. Today they will turn over the deed to the property to the village officers.

PLAYGROUND NEWS

On Sunday May 25th a number of Legionnaires and citizens of Midlothian who have at heart the interest and welfare of the children of the community, came out and worked as Trojans, digging, planting trees and shrubs, making sand boxes, benches and other things by which the youngsters of this town can play.

Many merchants of our town and business people in other sections, donated to this worthy cause, enabling this work to go on.

In next week's issue of THE MIDLOTHIAN MESSENGER there will be a complete list of those who donated either financially or of their time. These are the ones who are REALLY interested in the CIVIC welfare of this community.

On Sunday June 1st a special meeting of one representative from each church, civic clubs and other organizations is being planned for the purpose of forming a "Parks Committee".

Don't forget the Dedication of the Playground at 1:30 P. M. Decoration Day Friday May 30th. Will you and your family be there to show your appreciation of the efforts of those who have worked and donated toward the fixing up of the Park.

The Date May 30th.
The Time 1:30 P. M.
The Place: Robertson's Playground at 149th St.
C. A. Zuchelkowski, chairman Legion Park Committee.

ST. LUKE'S TO PICNIC

A picnic of the congregation of St. Luke's church will be held at Swallows Cliff, Palos Park, today. Members will meet at the church at 9 a. m., where cars will be provided. Games and athletic events are on the program. Each family will bring their own refreshments.

Scout News of Troop No. 1

The trip of Troop No. 1 to the Rock River, planned for last week, was postponed to this week. The boys will return Sunday night.

Richard Jage, 15 of Troop I, has completed tests for first class rating. Friday he won a merit badge in personal health at the court of honor in Harvey.

POSEN

Chicken thieves were busy here last week. The coop of Mrs. John Stoen was entered Tuesday night. 15 of the best chickens were stolen and the scrubs left. All of Mrs. Fred Krill's hens were taken the same night. On Wednesday night Mrs. Henry Heim lost three chickens—one was left.

Eighty friends helped Ed. Reimer, township clerk, celebrate his birthday Saturday evening. Guests were present from Tinley Park, Oak Forest, Midlothian and surrounding territory.

August Gehrke, Sr., Mr. Reimer's next door neighbor, also celebrated his birthday his 67th on Saturday. Among those present were his sons August Jr., Edward W. and Wm. F., with their families, also Mrs. Bertha Schauer and Frank Clemmons of Texas.

AUTO DITCHED

A Studebaker sedan, driven by Fred Redl of Cicero, crashed into the ditch at 147th and Trumbull at 9 a. m. Sunday morning, turning over and landing upside down. No one was injured, but the body of the car was almost a total wreck, with the body caved in, windows broken and the steering wheel smashed. Locked brakes are blamed for the accident. Kreis Bros. towed the truck to their garage.

The skit was sponsored by the Bremen School P. T. A. Art Wiesner's Student's orchestra furnished the music.

East End Asks For Zoning

The East End Development association, at a special meeting on May 22, decided to oppose the proposed deepening of the Rock Island ditch and to petition the village board to zone Midlothian to protect the interests of the east side.

The resolution passed by the association is as follows:

"WHEREAS, We are now in the fourth year of our incorporation as a Village, and have seen an unprecedented growth for a community hampered by the lack of practically every modern convenience for comfortable living; and

"WHEREAS, We, who have pioneered in our present development, overcoming obstacles with a firm determination to improve our conditions, and through our perseverance have figuratively and in fact pulled ourselves out of the mud; and

"WHEREAS, As we look around us we see our efforts nullified and the values we have created jeopardized by a type of shoddy construction, put up by disinterested builders who have had no experience in home ownership; and who thereby pay high prices for them; and

"WHEREAS, Our experience teaches us that we are laying our selves open to possible neighbors whose sole interest is to get into a ready made village cheaply, and will make no effort to develop their property; and usually oppose all improvements that demand an outlay of money; and

"WHEREAS, We feel that it is within the power of our village officials to zone the various residential sections of our village, restricting the types of residence construction to that type and price of structure predominating in the various sections, now therefore be it

"RESOLVED, That we pray to our village officials, by suitable ordinance, restrict the minimum to be spent in the construction of a building for residential purpose in that and north of 147th Street, to Forty-two hundred dollars ($4200.00). That no building whatsoever be erected on any lot until such a time as a residence conforming to the ordinance restrictions has been built. That this ordinance be made effective July 1st 1930, or sooner. That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of our meeting, and that the secretary be instructed to forward a copy thereof to the Village Board, to reach them by their next regular meeting."

Hearing on Watermains In Markham

A public hearing on a proposed system of cast iron water pipes on West 165th st., S. Trumbull ave., and Hillcrest drive in the village of Markham will be held June 2 at 8 p. m., at the Blue Park Gun club, 162nd and Crawford. The resolution on the job, which will be known as Markham Special Assessment No. 9, was passed at a meeting of the Board of Local Improvements May 22.

Estimated cost of the work, including six inch water pipes and four fire hydrants, is $7,071.93. The property affected is owned by H. W. Elmore Realty company and will serve their subdivision on Kedzie ave.

The committee on streets and alleys reported that they were still considering the half million dollar paving project.

Discussion indicated that a supplemental assessment would be started on job number 56443, a sewer and water job.

Special Meeting of School Board

Although called to meet at 7:30, the special meeting of the board of district 143 did not get under way until 9:30 p. m., one member coming in at that hour and another at 10:10.

Financial difficulties are still unsolved. Three teachers from the Harding school were present; the board promised them that either money or warrants would be given the teachers when school closed. The Bremen State bank will give the board a new loan for salaries when the tax money comes in. Teachers salaries are about four months in arrears.

President Otto Ziebell again asked the appointment of an attorney. Former president J. E. Pacatte defended the opinion of Brundage and Gorman. No action was taken.

Ed. Reimer moved that Attorney Gorman be asked for the deeds to the school property. A motion carried to limit the expense for supplies to $30 a room. All books are to be called in for checking.

Teachers from all schools except the Bremen school were ordered rehired. The meeting adjourned at midnight.

INSTALLS GREASE SYSTEM

Clarke-Hulett, local Chevrolet dealers, are installing an up-to-the-minute auto greasing system, consisting of an auto-elevator, grease gun and accessories. Declaring that 80 per cent of all repair bills are due to improper lubrication, they have gone to considerable expense to get the latest and best equipment.

A car coming into the garage for greasing will be driven over the 14 foot elevator. The hydraulic lift will raise the car high enough from the floor to permit easy inspection and rapid work. A grease gun, with an air pressure of 450 pounds to the square-inch, will force grease thru every one of the 33 vital lubrication points on the car.

When the job is completed, the lift is swung around and the car driven out without a squeak in any joint.

Board Acts To Zone Village

After a petition from the East End Development association was read at the village board meeting Tuesday night, the board decided to meet with a committee from the association at the McIntosh Realty office next Monday to consider ways and means of zoning. Attorney Harper volunteered his services four nights a week if necessary. A committee spoke for the group and a majority of the board favored immediate action.

A motion was made and carried to spend not exceeding $300 in grading and repairing the streets of the village.

Tuesday the courts confirmed the construction of sidewalks in the McIntosh subdivision and on 41st, between 147th and 148th sts. Bids for contracts were ordered advertised in THE MESSENGER and the Sun-Standard.

M. Hollearn asked a report from the police committee on a complaint he had filed. He was promised a report at the next meeting.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

On June 13th there will be election of officers at the Club House. There will be a covered dish luncheon and a large crowd is expected.

The Club met last Friday at the home of Mrs. A. Berg for a social meeting. Although it was a very bad day, a nice crowd turned out. Bridge was played and cake and coffee served.

Members of the club enjoyed an evening party at the home of Mrs. R. J. Hickey of Oak Forest Tuesday evening.

The special assessment bearing interest at the rate of six per cent (6 o/o).

No bid will be received unless the party offering it shall furnish evidence satisfactory to the Board of Local Improvements that he has the necessary facilities, ability and pecuniary resources to fulfill the conditions of the contract and execute the work should the contract be awarded to him.

Bidders will examine the Ordinance, maps, plat, plans, profiles and specifications and also the location in which said work is to be done and judge for themselves all of the circumstances and surrounding conditions affecting the cost and nature of the work.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a bond equal to one-third of the contract or total bid as required by law.

The Board of Local Improvements reserve the right to reject any and all bids as authorized by law.

William R. Shallerer, Secretary, Board of Local Improvements, Village of Midlothian, Cook County, Illinois.
Dated Midlothian, Illinois, May 29, A. D. 1930.

The Legion members have been busy the past week working on their new headquarters, the former Woerheide Real Estate office. Windows are being repaired, a new coat of paint has done wonders, and the lawn is being cut. The building will be ready for occupancy about June 1st. This building and grounds will some day be a real beauty spot in Midlothian.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Sidell of Hamlin Ave., enjoyed their two days trip to Springfield. They stopped at the general Legion headquarters at Bloomington. The others are in a beautiful memorial building. The matron is a very courteous and charming lady, willing to show visitors about the place, and it is a wonderful thing to see all the children so well cared for as there are schools, hospital and play grounds all combined to make the unfortunate children educated, healthy and happy.

Television Pictures With Their Color Values Transmitted at Bell Telephone Laboratories

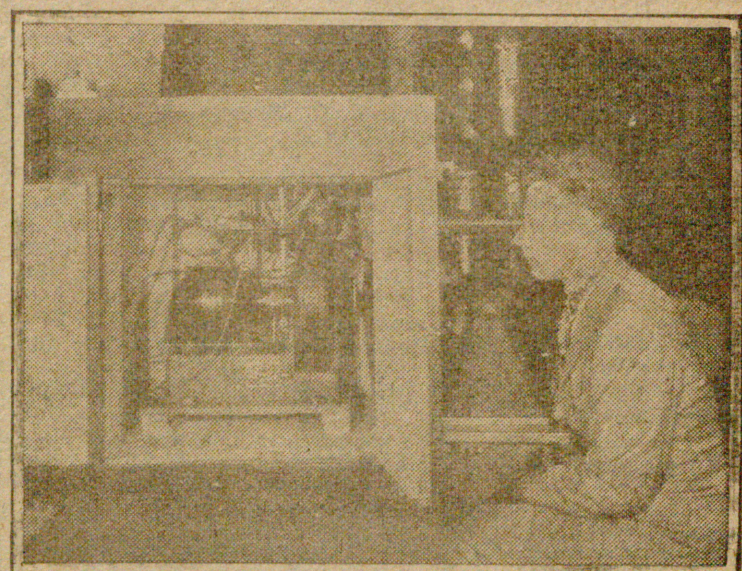

Side View of the Sending Apparatus

The Bell Laboratories have staged another television demonstration which represents a great advance in the art; the transmission by wire and the reproduction of moving objects in their natural colors without the sacrifice of detail. The color picture is restricted at present to the size of a postage stamp, but eventually it will be possible to flash scenes in color on a much larger screen.

Two years ago monochromatic television was demonstrated by the experts of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, when transmission took place over telephone circuits between Washington, D. C., and the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York, and by radio from the Bell Laboratories' experimental station at Whippany, N. J. Last year the possibility of reproducing outdoor scenes illuminated by sunlight was demonstrated.

In the process of color-television, the object is rapidly scanned by a bright beam of light while it is observed by three sets of electrical eyes, photoelectric cells, each set arranged to transmit current corresponding to the amount of a primary color—red, blue or green. At the receiving apparatus, three tubes form images corresponding in brightness and color to what had been seen by each set of electrical eyes of the transmitting apparatus. A system of mirrors combines these three images to form the one colored image before the eye of the observer.

"The only new features," said Dr. Herbert E. Ives, who has supervised the work in television in the Bell Laboratories, "are the type and arrangements of the photoelectric cells at the sending end, and the type and arrangements of the neon and argon lamps at the receiving end. The outstanding contributions that have made the present achievement possible are a new photoelectric cell, new gas cells for reproducing the image, and the equipment associated directly with them.

"To render the correct tone of colored objects, it was necessary to obtain photoelectric cells which—like the modern orthochromatic or panchromatic plate—would be sensitive throughout the visible spectrum. This requirement has been satisfactorily met."

TELEPHONE TOPICS

POPS QUESTION BY 'PHONE

Proposals of marriage by Long Distance telephone have been recorded before, but they still possess novelty and the Los Angeles Times chronicles a recent wedding at Hollywood as the result of such a proposal. Paul Page, stage and motion picture actor, while in New Orleans, popped the question by telephone to Miss Ethel Allis, Ziegfeld Girl, who was at her home in Springfield, Mass.

SPIRIT OF SERVICE ABROAD

The spirit of service for which the Bell System employees throughout the United States are noted has spread to foreign shores. The other day 120 telephone girls stuck to their posts in the central exchange at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, while smoke poured through the windows and flames ate away a corner of the room. Finally the district fire chief forced the girls to abandon their work and they were marshaled in an orderly manner downstairs through the smoke.

FOUND IN TELEPHONE BOOKS

A $5,000 insurance policy was found the other day in a discarded telephone directory which had been collected in one of New York City's suburbs. The policy was at once returned to the beneficiary, Mrs. Eleanor Madigan of Woodhaven, Long Island. The policy was on the life of James Madigan, who had died only the week before, since which time his mother had searched everywhere for the missing life insurance policy.

Telephone directories contain numbers. Also—some of them—contain a number of other things.

A Cleveland, O., woman not so long ago left $175 in currency between the pages in her telephone directory. When the new directory was issued, the old one was collected, loaded on a truck and hauled with tons of others to a warehouse in another part of the city. Then, when it was too late, the subscriber remembered about the money concealed in the old directory. It was finally discovered and restored to her, but only after searchers had looked through four or five tons of old books in the warehouse.

THE POLICE NOT NEEDED

"Don't—don't shoot! I won't do it any more."

An alert telephone operator in Seattle, Wash., overheard the foregoing ejaculation when in response to her query, "Number, please," no one answered, lost no time in notifying the police, with the result that within a few minutes two officers were pounding at the door of D. R. Paull, who resides in the northern section of the city. The police were expecting to find a near-murder being enacted and they did happen upon a highly melodramatic scene in which three small children were playing the leading part. Jimmy, astride his pitching bronco, had ridden down the Injin, Catherine McDonald, who lived across the hall and who had backed into a corner of the room where stood the telephone. In some way her shoulder got under the telephone receiver and lifted it up just as she spoke the exciting words heard by the telephone operator, who, nevertheless, was complimented by the police for her alertness, even though the call for help proved to be a false alarm.

A STORY FOR DOG OWNERS

Evidently Dynamite is well named—not the explosive, but the six months' old terrier in Denver which was credited with telephoning the police to liberate him from a jewelry store where he had been inadvertently locked in.

It seems that Dynamite fell asleep under a counter when his master was making a purchase. He failed to wake up until after the store was locked for the night. When he did awake, it was to find the place in darkness, and barks and howls proved of no avail. Finally he jerked the telephone to the floor, thus releasing the receiver from the hook and signaling the operator. She heard the dog's bark and notified the police, with the result that the riot squad hastened to the scene. Whether or not the dog knew what he was doing when he "telephoned" for help the police are at a loss to determine, but the owners of smart dogs will believe that he did know what he was doing.

Zenith and nadir are both Arabic words, the first signifying the point of the heavens directly above one, while nadir denotes the invisible point directly beneath.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripped; children liked its pleasant taste. All drug stores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

Despite rain at the hour set for the ceremonies, several thousand persons gathered to witness the formal dedication of the state highway bridge at Florence on Monday, May 19. Director Harry H. Cleaveland, of the state department of purchases and construction, who introduced Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, briefly mentioned the salient features of the structure. Governor Emmerson called attention to the material resources of Pike and Calhoun counties and predicted a greatly accelerated development in the near future. Opening of the Florence bridge saves motorists about 30 minutes in getting across the Illinois river, the state highway department estimates. The new bridge has a total length of about 3,900 feet—Illinois' longest bridge.

Strip mines placed the state's output of coal for April, 1930, above the production for the corresponding month of last year, according to a report recently issued by Director John G. Millhouse, of the state department of mines and minerals. From the tabulated records of 144 mines in operation during April, 1929 and 1930, the total yield showed an increase of 124,457 tons. The strip mines produced 135,483 tons more in the past month than in April last year.

Failure of a bank after a depositor has paid taxes by check does not relieve the depositor of making good the check, Attorney General Carlstrom has ruled. The attorney general, however, informed the state's attorney from whom the inquiry was received, that unless the collector used customary diligence in cashing the check, he was at fault.

Deaths from tuberculosis in Illinois this year have dropped 100 per month below the figures for the corresponding period in 1929, according to an announcement by the state department of public health. Compared with the corresponding period in 1929, deaths from tuberculosis in Illinois during the first quarter of this year declined 20 per cent.

"Veterans' Day," a new form of patriotic entertainment, will be the opening attraction of the Illinois state fair, August 1. Plans for an afternoon and evening of competitive events, open to all exservice men, are being formulated by the leaders of the state's military organizations in conjunction with the fair officials, Stuart Pierson, director of agriculture, has announced.

Director Rodney Brandon of the state department of welfare addressed the annual meeting of the Illinois probation officers at Charleston and explained his plan for the vocational training of prisoners and the management of prison labor. Mr. Brandon said that it would be fair to sell the results of prison labor at a profit if some system of remunerating the prisoners or their dependents of prisoners can be made effective.

Illinois' infant mortality rate in 1929 dropped to a new low level of 61.5 per 1,000 births, Dr. Andy Hall, director of the state department of public health, has announced. There were 426 fewer infant deaths in 1929 than in 1928. During 1929 7,907 infants died as against 13,109 in 1918.

Thomas Williamson, Edwardsville, assistant director of purchases and construction for the state of Illinois, was elected governor of the Forty-fourth Rotary district at the convention recently held in Jacksonville.

Following an extended conference with Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, Harry H. Cleaveland, director of public works and buildings, made a report on the progress of state highway work in the metropolitan area of which Chicago is the center. "A survey of the present situation shows that we have placed under contract $382,161.52 worth of work involving widening of existing pavements to 40 feet, the building of new 40-foot pavements, grade separations and bridges," said Mr. Cleaveland. "In addition, we have received bids and are ready to award within the next day or two $885,031.93 worth of work comprising many important highway widening and new highway projects, railroad grade separations and bridges."

Net income from amusement features in the Midway at the Illinois State Fair grounds will establish an all-time record this year, Stuart E. Pierson, director of agriculture, and Milton E. Jones, fair manager, have announced. Proceeds from "Happy Hollow" will show an increase of 29 per cent over last year, an amount that will be about double the receipts in 1928. The increase is due to a policy inaugurated last year by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Prior to 1929, the Midway amusements operated on a percentage agreement with the state. Now the contract is let to the highest bidder.

Illinois received $3,100,781 of the original appropriation by congress for federal-aid highways and $2,067,187 of the supplementary appropriation of $50,000,000 authorized by the bill signed by President Hoover on April 4; which also authorized the appropriation of $125,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1932 and 1933. All appropriations of federal funds for highways in the federal aid system are based on the area, population and post road mileage of the states, and the share of each state is available for expenditure on roads included in the federal-aid system under the joint supervision of the state highway departments and the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The June term calendar just issued from the office of Charles W. Vail, clerk of the Supreme court, carries a number of cases to be brought before that court, which command general interest. One such case is that of the Chicago Tribune against Mayor William Hale Thompson and County Treasurer George F. Harding of Cook county, in which a judgment in favor of the taxpayers in the sum of $2,245,604 was rendered. Another case which the Supreme court will be asked to review is one in which a judgment for $56,234 was rendered in the Circuit court of Cook county for loss or damage by fire to 6,869 cases of prewar whiskey.

Just returned from an inspection trip of the 3,300 acre forestry tract in Union county, Lewis B. Springer, state superintendent of forestry, announced that demonstrations of practical forestry are being carried out on this 3,300 acre tract. A nursery is being established which will supply trees to reforest waste lands, roads are being improved and a fire protective system which includes the erection of a 60 foot tower is under way, Mr. Springer said.

A monument erected by the state of Illinois to the memory of Gen. John A. Logan on the site of the high school at Murphysboro, his birthplace, was unveiled May 24. Prominent guests invited to the dedicatory ceremonies included: United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, and E. J. Foster, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Contracts for erection of the bridge over the Illinois river at Hardin, to cost $627,207.30, were awarded recently by the state department of public works and buildings. The lift span, which is to be 309 feet in length, giving a clearance of 300 feet for boats that ply the Illinois river, is the longest vertical lift span of all the bridges that Illinois has thus far designed, Chief Highway Engineer Frank T. Sheets announced. It is the same type of construction as the 3,900-foot bridge which was recently dedicated at Florence.

Furniture auctioned by Abraham Lincoln when the family moved to Washington and said to have occupied a place in the home of the martyred President in Springfield was sold by Ben Wilton and his cousin Dick Wilton of Alton to representatives of Henry Ford. The furniture, which consists of 22 pieces, is to be placed in the old court house building which was recently removed from Lincoln, Ill., to the Greenfield village at Dearborn, Mich.

The 64 county fairs that have registered their 1930 dates with the department of agriculture are again centralizing on the last half of August and the first weeks of September. The entire season is one of 10 weeks. The Coles county fair at Charleston and the Saline county fair at Harrisburg open the Illinois fair season, July 28.

Starved Rock state park, comprising more than 1,000 acres of rugged territory along the south bank of the Illinois river, was formally opened to the public for the season, Sunday, May 18.

WHAT BRIDESMAIDS WILL WEAR; CHIC PRINT JACKET COSTUMES

WITH such a wealth of entrancing materials as the fabric field offers for the fashioning of frocks for the bridesmaid this season, fancy is given free range to choose "the one you love best," tuning your selection, of course, to the wedding scene from a pictorial viewpoint.

There are, however, certain fabric trends which it is well to keep in mind, before making a final decision in regard to media for the gowns—beautiful which the fair attendants of the bride will wear. An outstanding choice, this season, is lace, another is silhouette of bouffant skirt and short-waisted fitted bodice.

Jacket Costumes Popular.

The jacket costume has become a staple so far as the wardrobe of the fashionable woman is concerned. The interesting feature about these practical wearable ensembles is the materials of which they are made. The fact that most of the newer weaves are washable is almost unbelievable, considering the handsomeness of their appearance.

Here's some of the stunning weaves which go to make up the swanky organdie and if we may venture to suggest a third it is printed cotton net. Not that taffeta, silk crepe or satin, chiffon, tulle, moire and a continued list of lovely weaves have become obsolete. No, indeed! But notwithstanding the lure of these materials, many stylists are turning to organdie, net and lace as being "different" from the usual choices.

Now that the entire fashion world is in the throes of an accurate lace-consciousness it follows in natural sequence that many of the maids attending June brides will be lace-clad. Thus it is that lace fine as cobweb and patterned with intriguing all over florals, reflecting also every lovely tone and tint, is, at this time, providing a new theme for the creator of wedding party frocks.

The charm of lace is accentuated in the beguiling gown pictured above to left. The long single streamer of self-lace offers endless possibilities in the way of graceful gesture as the cortege keeps step to the joyous strains of the wedding march. Then too, the several gowns, being in orchid, blue, rose, perhaps also maize and pale green, play a most effective color jacket costumes which "everybody's wearing" these days—pique in brown, black, or navy, shantung in dark-suit colorings, allover embroidered effects on linen or pique and in printed design, shantung patterned in vivid motifs, embroidered crepe, also silk-embroidered pique and legions of printed crepes.

Designers are in a mood to "make it snappy" when it comes to color for these now-so-chic jacket costumes. They emphasize color in two ways, either through the brightness of the print itself or by adding accessories which splash color in "spots" from head to foot. A jacket and skirt of brown linen, per example, with a blouse of orange handkerchief linen, a hat also in tones of orange, adding a pocketbook and scarf of orange, egg shell and brown print fabric, is sure to present a most striking color study.

Then again the message of color is carried through the print of the fabric in a manner as convincing as the picture herewith reveals. In this instance every item from dress to hat, blouse and scarf is highly colorful.

As to just how colorful one's costume is, depends largely upon the symphony. The diaphanous beauty of the ensemble is accented by draped wide-brim capelines of transparent hair braid, the trimming of these chapeaux tuning in to the general color scheme.

Designers are all enthusiastic in regard to organdie this season, especially for bridesmaid wear. The quaint gown in the picture to the right has hand-painted clusters of flowers painted on the organdie, the piping about the scallop being variously keyed to the general color scheme. The poke bonnet is of filmy lace, and its quaintness is supplemented with puff sleeves, a prim bouquet and a print of which it is fashioned. For instance, some of the smartest town suits for summer are made of dark washable printed fabrics which space little figures in gay lines over navy, red, black, brown, or perhaps dark green backgrounds.

With these clever jackets and skirts of handsome print, the blouse is playing a most sensational role. Dotted swiss, handkerchief linen, pique de soie, organdie, embroidered batiste are but a few of the weaves of which smart blouses (especially tuck-ins) are made.

STORY FROM THE START

Capt. Lion Fellowes' American merchant ship is sunk by a British frigate off Portugal in the War of 1912. The crew surrenders, but Fellowes reaches shore exhausted. His life is saved by an English-speaking girl, who conceals her identity. She is about to set out for Lisbon. Fellowes goes to Lisbon where he meets an acquaintance, Capt. Chater of the American ship True Bounty, who offers him a berth as a mate, but knowing Chater is disloyal in trading with the enemy, he refuses. He meets the girl who saved his life, Cara Inglepin, daughter of the owner of True Bounty. She is bound for home and induces Fellowes to sail as mate. He is in love with Cara. The vessel is stopped by the British frigate, Badger, Captain Collishaw. Despite his claims to American citizenship, Fellowes is taken aboard the Badger as a "pressed" man. Maddened at what he believes is Cara's and Chater's treachery he strikes Collishaw, who orders him a hundred lashes with the "cat." Fellowes' hatred of the three becomes an obsession. Off New York Fellowes escapes from the Badger. He seizes a plot in a meeting to be held at Chater's home and gathers a company of militia to fight against the traitors. In a fight between the militia and British sailors Collishaw escapes.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

No one was visible about the house and outbuildings, but a trickle of smoke capped the chimney, and from the barn in the rear came the lowing of cattle, and a great clucking and quacking. Fellowes threw wide the front door, and motioned Cuffee to pass in first. On their right hand, a door stood ajar, and through the crack filtered a shaft of light and an indefinable suggestion of human presence. Fellowes kicked open this door with his bare foot, and again gave precedence to Cuffee.

There was a flutter of movement in the room. "God save us!" exclaimed a man. "Oh, who is he?" cried Cara Inglepin's voice. An asthmatic torrent of Portuguese: "Sanctissima mai e todos os Santos!" And Chater's nasal drawl: "You don't need to drip all the blood onto the carpet, olger."

Fellowes entered after Cuffee, with Tom tramping his heels. He saw Cara Inglepin first, very white-faced and thinner than he remembered her on the True Bounty, in a green frock that accentuated the dusky glow of her hair; and resolutely, tenaciously, he curbed the thrill her beauty inspired. He hated this woman, he reminded himself. What right had she to rouse in him desire or satisfaction?

She sat on a sofa by the fireplace with a man he recognized as her father. Benjamin Inglepin was a stout, caddy gentleman. He was dressed, as became a prominent Federalist, in the fashion of the elder century, black satin breeches and dresscoat, Mechlin stock and jabot, white silk stockings and varnished pumps with silver buckles. The faces of father and daughter revealed a mingling of fright and compassion. Chater leaned against the mantelpiece, chewing a cigar, his wily visage doing its best to mirror indifference. The duenna crouched in a corner, her broad face woebegone, her fingers plucking at a rosary.

Fellowes bowed ironically toward the sofa.

"I am loath to inconvenience you," he said, "but we require a temporary resting place for the body of an American soldier."

Cara Inglepin was on her feet in a second; her father rose more slowly.

"You?" she cried, her face a study in emotions. "How come you here? He said you were on the Badger!" She clutched Ben Inglepin's arm. "Father, 'tis Lion—Lion Fellowes! James must have fetched him ashore, after all."

Inglepin was nonplused, and made no attempt to hide it. Chater's jaw dropped, and he went as tall as the duenna, who wheezed a reiterated: "Sanctissima!"

"No, I assure you Captain Collishaw had nothing to do with my being here," Fellowes denied.

"But he promised me you should be set ashore in the next cartel."

Fellowes laughed, and she shrank from that laugh as from a blow.

"You don't believe me?"

"I fear I do not, ma'am."

"Oh, you must!" There was a frantic note in her voice. "I have suffered more than you can know. But 'twas a mistake! James—Captain Collishaw—he had seen you in New York. He knew officers who had been at Eton with you. He was persuaded you were truly a British subject. And he misunderstood something Captain Chater said."

"I'll swear he did," Fellowes assented mockingly. "How of that, Chater? What was your error?"

"Why, ye heard what I said to him on deck," responded the True Bounty's master.

"Ah, but below decks?"

"Well, naow—Tarnation, Fellowes."

he asked me was it true ye was born in London, and all that. And I said 'twas. And afore I could say more he cut me off."

"A fair story," Fellowes applauded.

"And where were you, ma'am?"

She regarded him gravely.

"My duenna was quite ill of the sea-sickness, and called me from the cabin."

Fellowes remembered the duenna's face at the cabin port as he left the True Bounty, and his impression of her ejaculation in English. He wheeled upon the stolid creature.

"Is it true?" he snapped.

She eyed him with imponderable calm, gabbling a phrase in Portuguese.

"She has no English," said Miss Inglepin. "You must know that."

"I am not so sure," returned Fellowes. "There is a deal of misinformation abroad in this room."

Ben Inglepin seemed to think the time had come to assert himself.

"You are entitled to a sense of justice, Captain Fellowes," he said courteously; "and I hold myself to blame that you should have been pressed from my ship. But indeed, sir, you'll not find us backward in making amends, and I assure you the whole sorry affair was founded upon misunderstanding." Captain Collishaw confessed himself in the wrong tonight in this very room.

Fellowes stared at him with a contempt that set twitching the wattles under the merchant's chin.

"Frankly, sir, I do not believe you."

"Tush, Captain Fellowes, as one gentleman to another—"

"What has gentility to do with it, sir? I am an American—who has been wronged. And I have yet to ask you to explain Captain Collishaw's presence here. This poor old man—" he nodded to Cuffee's burden—"gave his life to thwart the treason you plotted."

Inglepin changed color.

"Treason! 'Tis a strong word."

"No man can't say that 'baout me! I'm as good as ye by any day, Fellowes."

"Doubtless you'll have no difficulty in so convincing the Federal authorities," Fellowes observed.

"It can be explained, sir," Inglepin protested eagerly. "The thoughtless deed of a rash young man."

"Acting upon his admiral's instructions."

"No, not a personal matter," Mr. Inglepin became ruddier, a thought short of wind. "Most unfortunate, most unfortunate! My daughter—you see, the fact is—"

He glanced toward her appealingly, and she made a little gesture of resignation.

"I came to see me, Mr. Fellowes."

"I question it not, ma'am."

She hesitated, blushing rosy-red, and Chater interjected:

"Collishaw's daft over her."

"A lover's tryst," sneered Fellowes. "That's the tale, now!"

"Need we dispute over it, sir?" she asked with dignity. "We seem all to forget that death is present with us, and deserves somewhat of respect."

"Even a dead American, who was sacrificed for a nest of traitors?" he queried sarcastically, turning to assist Cuffee.

"Does it matter for what a man dies, if it be only what he believes—Oh! Her voice shrilled in a scream. "Your back! Your back!"

One hand flew to her mouth as if to contain the sobs that rattled in her throat; the other was extended shakily toward Fellowes, who, in turning, had exposed his striped back and flanks to the glare of the candles in the wall-sconces. The agony in her face was unmistakable.

"Oh, Father!" she wailed. "How dreadful! That was what he meant—when he spoke of punishment!"

Fellowes frowned her again, stirred, despite himself, by the genuineness of her emotion, provoked that he should be.

"'Twas only a hundred lashes," he said. "Is it so much worse than you looked for?"

She shuddered.

Marvelous Number of Nerve Cells in Brain

The piece of machinery which operates more like the brain than any other is the automatic telephone. The televisor is more spectacular, but its work is limited. In the operation of the automatic telephone the selection is made in the same way—by a series of number signals rung, in succession, by a small contact point behind the telephone dial as it turns. But instead of the hundred separate signal combinations that the televisor can understand, the telephone system has place for nearly ten billions.

Yet even this vast sum the human brain exceeds. The number of living nerve cells in the surface gray matter of the brain is more than 9,000,000,000. If it be assumed that these can be connected to one another in "How you must hate me!" There was no trace of belligerence in her manner. "I am proud, too. A hundred lashes! I should hate—But words are cheap, sir."

"They have their price," Fellowes agreed coldly. "'Tis lamentable a lesser injustice should breed a greater, but those who deal in injustice may not complain if their victims rebel against the larger portion."

"Injustice!" She swayed. "Ah, if I might make you see. Oh, Father, I said ill should come of this, and sure, 'tis here. He does well to hate me," she panted. "That back! How can men—Oh, there are stripes on my soul will never fade!"

And she collapsed in a crumpled, green mass on the turkey carpet.

There was a sudden tense silence in the crowded parlor. Then Inglepin bent over his daughter, and the duenna swept across the floor, a purposeful glint in her bead eyes. Fellowes motioned Cuffee toward the dining-room.

"They will require the sofa for the lady. Lay Sergeant Peirt on the table. Tom, you stand guard at the door here. And remember, no one is to pass out."

"Nonsense, Captain Fellowes!" Inglepin abandoned his daughter to the capable attentions of the duenna. "We must remove this girl to her bedroom."

"Not for the present, sir. None of you leaves this room without being searched—or until after the house has been searched."

"Mighty high-handed, ain't ye?" whined Chater. And Inglepin slammed a plump fist into a plump palm.

"By Heaven, young man, you go too far! I may be a Federalist in a state governed by Democratic handiwork, but you'll learn I'm not without either friends or influence. Search, and be d—d to you!"

"Ye'll find nothin'," jeered Chater. Footsteps sounded in the hall, and Tom leaned Cuffee's musket against the parlor wall, hefting his ax expertly.

"Strange craft in the off'n, messmate," he reported. "Boards in the companionway." He peeked around the lintel. "Sink me, if 'tain't that milksy cap'n."

Chater bared yellow fangs to greet Nimrod Sopher, who stalked in, the dragon's snout in hand, a slightly sheepish air of bravado on his long face.

"Well, naow, Sopher, this is real neighborly of ye, overunin' my farm with yer Fencibles! I s'pose ye're fixin to rid me of Squire Fellowes 'n' all this crazyfool talk o' his'n?"

Sopher was taken aback.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that," he denied. "You know, you are subject to suspicion, Chater—oh, not in any attributions or, let us say, invective sense—No, no, nothing libelous! Merely, that you have—ah—whether of your own volition or not, been in communication with the enemy."

"How can I help it if some young squirt of a Britisher wants to come ashore to see a gal?" demanded Chater.

Fellowes found the form and tone of the question as unpleasant as did Inglepin.

"That will do," he ordered sharply. "Are your men outside, Nimrod?"

"Most of them. I—ah—thought best to rally them after—we—ah—parted company."

"If they hadn't had to—rally—we should have taken Collishaw, and poor old Peirt wouldn't have died by himself."

"Oh, quite a rash statement, my dear fellow, quite a rash statement," objected the lawyer-militiaman. "I'm certain you couldn't prove it. And green troops always require blooding, you know. 'Tis the rule. And as for Peirt—a worthy fellow, very—splendid soldier—a veteran, to be sure, forever talking of battles. But fortunately a widower—and no children. I confess I shouldn't know where to turn if we'd lost a man with a family. I must have left the village. Actually, I assure you!"

Lesson for June 1

CONTRAST BETWEEN FAITHFULNESS AND SLOTHFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing the Best for Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Rule for Promotion.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Use Our Talents.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Service.

This parable, like that of the ten virgins, has a vital relationship to the second coming of Christ. In both instances the unpreparedness for His coming on the part of the people is shown. In that of the ten virgins their unreadiness consisted in their lack of the inward life—absence of the Holy Spirit. In this of the talents, their failure was properly to use the gifts which God had entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was failure to work. To each of His servants, God entrusted certain gifts and will hold each responsible for their use. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as gifts of God—physical strength, reason, energy, knowledge, influence, time, money, the gift of speech and song.

I. The Distribution of the Talents (vv. 14, 15).

1. It was a sovereign act.

The Lord called His own servants and distributed to them His own money. He did not consult us as to our gifts. The One who created us and absolutely owns us has assigned us our place and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. "According to His several ability."

The God who created us knew our ability to use gifts, therefore made the distribution upon that basis.

3. It was a purposeful act.

The talents were given to be traded with, not to be used for one's own gain and profit, but as stock in trade for the enrichment and glory of the Master.

II. The Employment of the Talents (vv. 16-18).

1. All the servants recognized that the talents were not their own; that they were therefore responsible to the Lord for the use made of them. This is the first principle of right Christian service. We should remember that we are all stewards of the manifold blessings and grace of God.

2. Two servants used their talents. The five-talent man put his to use and gained five more, and the two-talent man put his two talents to use and gained two more. This shows that God's gifts can be increased. The faithful use of what we have in the place where we are will prepare us for greater usefulness and honor.

3. The one hid his talent.

The fact that one possesses but one talent should not discourage him, but rather make him strive the more. God does not reward according to what we possess, but according to our faithfulness. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him.

III. The Accounting for the Talents (vv. 19-30).

1. Its certainty (v. 19).

There is a day coming when all must give account of their stewardship. Answer must be given as to the use made of God's gifts.

2. The time (v. 19).

It will be at the coming of the Lord.

3. Judgments announced (vv. 21-30).

(1) Reward of the faithful (vv. 21-23).

a. Praise, "Well done." All like to be praised. How blessed it will be to hear from the lips of the Lord Himself, "Well done." b. Promotion. The great consideration for all is not how many talents we possess, but as to how faithful we are in their use. (2) Punishment of the faithless (vv. 24-30). The one-talent man lied when brought to account. a. Reproach. "Thou wicked and slothful servant." To be called lazy is a reproach disliked even by a lazy man. b. Stripped. "Take therefore the talent from him." Even the talent which had been given to him was now wrenched from him. c. Cast out. "Cast into outer darkness." This servant was condemned on his own ground. The very fact that he knew the character of his Lord should have been an incentive for him to have exerted himself.

Criticism's Object

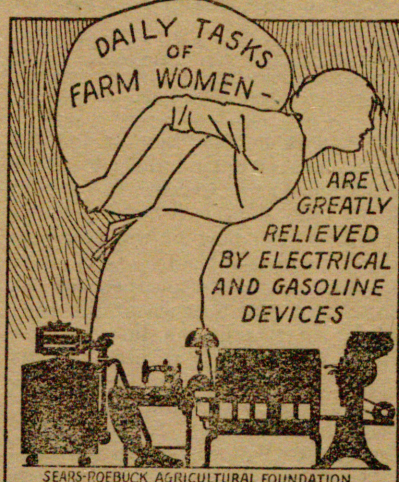

The legitimate aim of criticism is to draw attention to the excellent. The bad will dig its own grave, and the imperfect may safely be left to that final neglect from which no amount of present undeserved popularity can rescue it.—Bovee.

Labor-Saving Equipment Is Coming to the Farm Home

Labor-saving and health-conserving equipment found in the modern city residence is gradually coming into use in the farm home, where it is most needed, and is revolutionizing the daily tasks of the farm housewife, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation observes.

With the advent of electric power secured either from individual power plants, central stations, or transmission lines, the farm wife has been able to use the electricity driven washing machine, sardion, vacuum cleaner, churn, cream separator, and other energy-saving devices. Hand sweepers, washing machines, separators, sewing machines, canners, bread mixers and the like have relieved the drudgery on farms where electric power is not available.

In the farm kitchen, the kerosene or gasoline stove or electric range have done away with much of the discomfort of working over a hot coal range. Fireless cookers give many a farm wife an occasional afternoon off or help her get to church on Sunday mornings. Acetylene or gasoline lamps or electric lights are replacing the kerosene lamp, giving better light and easing the labor of cleaning lamp chimneys.

In a survey of forty thousand farm homes in forty-six states, conducted by the General Federation of Women's clubs, it was found that 71.8 per cent had sewing machines; 51.5 per cent food choppers; 50.1 per cent, refrigeration of some kind; 44.6 per cent, water piped to the house; 40.3 per cent, washing machines; 30.5 per cent, kerosene or gasoline stoves; 24.6 per cent, electric or gas sardions, and 17.3 per cent, vacuum cleaners. While this group of homes may not have been entirely typical, the survey does indicate that hundreds of thousands of farm homes are becoming equipped with labor-saving devices, the Foundation adds.

Favorite Bible Passages

Thomas D. Schall

U. S. Senator from Minnesota.

Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth.—Hebrews 12:6.

Comment: In the first year of my blindness I often wished that He had not loved me quite so much, but through the chastisement has come to me understanding. With that understanding I realize the truth. I no longer pray “Take the cup from me,” but accept the light for life as it is presented to me. After twenty-one years of darkness I wouldn't trade the understanding that has come to me for all the eyes in the world.

I entered the forest of darkness untamed, undisciplined, grasping, selfish. I came out of that darkness when understanding became my sight, when I had learned to bear disappointment, when I had comprehended to do the thing that was to be done for love of the cause and not for self-aggrandizement. When I became interested unselfishly, and worked because the work was there to be done, without considering whether the result would help me or not—though in the doing of the thing that would not help me I was most helped—I began to understand what Christ meant, when His disciples, quarreling among themselves as to who should be first, replied, “The first shall be last and the last shall be first. He that shall endure until the end shall be saved.” (Compiled by the Bible Guild.)
